Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 13 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Sleet and snow overnight and tomorrow morning. Icy.

This Evening and Tonight:
Occasionally heavy rain will turn to sleet, or snow over higher ground with risk of disruption to transport corridors. Some significant accumulations are expected, with risk of icy conditions at low levels. Feeling cold in the wind. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Thursday:
Outbreaks of sleet and snow will gradually ease during the day, becoming more patchy, and mainly over hills by evening. Feeling cold in the wind. Icy and frosty overnight. Maximum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Cold on Friday, with early frost, mainly dry with broken cloud. Windy with rain and snow on Saturday, and possible further disruptive accumulations. Drier, brighter, but cold on Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.